

TESTIMONIAL

Project: Hay River Diesel Lines Abandonment – Hay River, NT

Client: Flint Energy Services Limited Partnership

To Whom It May Concern,

Flint Energy Services Limited Partnership recently engaged CEMATRIX (Canada) Inc. to abandon a decommissioned network of diesel lines at the Imperial Oil Hay River Terminal in the Northwest Territories. There had been a previous attempt to abandon the lines using conventional flowable fill material, but it was not flowable enough and the abandonment could not be completed. CEMATRIX produced and pumped flowable cellular concrete and was able to fully fill the lines, eliminating the risk of future ground settlement caused by pipe decay and collapse.

The CEMATRIX team was professional, responsive, and exceptionally well-prepared for the task. They mobilized crew and equipment from Calgary, Alberta to Hay River, NT, demonstrating strong logistical coordination and commitment to meeting project timelines in a remote location. The work was executed efficiently and with a high degree of technical competence. Imperial Oil representatives were highly impressed with both the seamless execution of the work and the performance of the cellular concrete, noting it is an ideal solution for pipe abandonment applications. As a result, Imperial Oil has specifically requested that CEMATRIX be contacted for any future similar work.

In addition to their technical expertise, CEMATRIX demonstrated an outstanding commitment to safety. Their safety program was comprehensive, well-organized, and clearly embedded in their day-to-day operations. From detailed hazard assessments and thorough documentation to proactive communication and strong field-level leadership, their team consistently prioritized the well-being of all personnel on site. They integrated smoothly with our own safety protocols and maintained a clean, orderly, and controlled work environment throughout the project. Their proactive approach significantly contributed to the successful and incident-free completion of the work.

I found CEMATRIX to be a reliable specialty subcontractor that delivers exceptional on-site service with their innovative grout product, while maintaining the highest standards of safety and professionalism. I confidently recommend CEMATRIX (Canada) Inc. for abandonment projects and any work requiring specialized grouting solutions.

Sincerely,
